

The proof is in the data.

What the connected properties can honestly support as numbers, claims, brag bars, and case-study proof.

Three client stories have real material.

Two more properties provide useful internal signals. The rest should not be used as proof yet.

● BUILD A CASE Master Scoopers Closest buyer fit. Search visibility, traffic history, and a conversion signal.	● BUILD A CASE Taqueria La Paz Strong local-search outcome with a historical traffic-growth candidate.	● BUILD A CASE Decatique Studios Search visibility, recent click growth, and a lead-event signal.
● INTERNAL Nice Right Instrumentation is working. Volume is too small to market as client proof.	● INTERNAL UXOXO Some traffic, but no meaningful Search Console outcome.	● DO NOT USE OneWithUX Search impressions but zero clicks; no success story.

+285%

GA4 SESSIONS

734 sessions in Apr–Sep 2024 → 2,829 sessions in Oct 2024–Mar 2025.

“Nearly 4× the sessions across two adjacent six-month periods.”

Promising match to the published 290% claim. Use +285% unless the original case-study window proves a different figure.

One article became a traffic engine.

The strongest evidence is not a vague “SEO improved.” It is a specific page earning demand at scale.

RANKING PROOF

“pooper scooper” averaged position 3.3

LOCAL-INTENT PROOF

“dog waste removal chicago” averaged position 8.0

BREADTH

33 pages generated clicks in the latest year

A local restaurant was findable.

This is the kind of outcome a small-business owner understands immediately: people searched, found the restaurant, and reached the site.

Measurement is working. That is not the same as market proof.

The Nice Right property is useful for improving the funnel and proving that the instrumentation exists. It is not yet a client-result brag bar.

NICE RIGHT / GA4

259 sessions · 232 users

17 CTA clicks, 2 scanner submissions, 135 pricing views, 233 scroll-depth events.

NICE RIGHT / GSC

12 clicks · 619 impressions

Brand query “nice right” averaged position 3.9. Too little volume for public proof.

ONEWITHUX

PROPERTY HYGIENE

Do not add duplicates

Decatique and Taqueria each have multiple GA4 properties; choose canonical sources first.

Strong copy is specific copy.

These are evidence-backed directions, not final approved claims. Each still needs client permission and a source note.

● MASTER SCOOPERS

"A home-service website that generated 452K Google Search impressions and 2,053 clicks in one year."

Safe as a dated outcome. Add property/date/source note.

● MASTER SCOOPERS

"Sessions rose 285% across two six-month periods."

Best candidate for the old 290% claim, pending intervention timeline.

● TAQUERIA LA PAZ

"1,922 organic search clicks for a Chicago restaurant in one year."

Concrete local-search outcome; brand demand must be described honestly.

● DECATIQUE STUDIOS

"Search clicks grew 32.5% in the latest 90-day period."

Use the comparison window, not a timeless percentage.

Preferred wording: "recorded," "generated," "increased"

Avoid "caused" until the project timeline proves mechanism

Every number needs a claim card.

This is the minimum evidence package before a result moves from research into website copy.

1. Canonical source	Property ID, site property, stream, domain, and whether duplicate properties were excluded.	REQUIRED
2. Exact metric	Sessions, users, clicks, impressions, event count, or downstream contacts—not “traffic” by implication.	REQUIRED
3. Date window	Start/end dates, baseline period, comparison period, and whether the latest window is partial.	REQUIRED
4. Mechanism	What Nice Right changed, when it changed, and why the metric plausibly moved.	PROVE
5. Business outcome	Form, call, booking, sale, or client-confirmed result. GA events alone are tracking signals.	PROVE
6. Permission	Client approval, allowed name/logo, permitted number, and whether the result can be public.	PROVE

Lead with outcomes owners recognize.

The first version should use three dated client outcomes—not a pile of generic capability claims.
